INTRODUCTION

The Atlona AT-HD420 converts HDMI to a VGA or component output plus stereo audio. It enables an HDMI source to connect to a PC monitor, Projector or TV. Its high bandwidth capability supports a wide range of PC monitor and HDTV resolutions up to 1920 X 1200 or 1080p.

The converter is also capable of de-embedding audio from the HDMI source and converting it to a stereo 1/8-inch interface. This will allow the user to connect it to a set of speakers, an AVR or any other audio device.

Note 1. The AT-HD420 is a format converter only; therefore user would have to choose the resolution on the HDMI/DVI source which he/she would want to see on the output. The converter will not scale the signal and therefore it is very important to select the proper resolution on the originating source

Note 2. If an HDMI source includes HDCP(High-bandwidth Digital Content Protection), the AT-HD420 output does not support HDCP decryption, therefore no image will display.

TROUBLESHOOTING

1. No Picture:

- Ensure that the source output resolution is supported by your display. Check displays documentation for list of supported resolutions.
- If your source is a Blu-ray player most purchased media is HDCP (copywrite protected by the studio) protected which is not supported by the AT-HD420.

2. Color Accuracy:

- If the display exhibits a green hue over the image on your HDTV then check the component cable to make sure all colors on the cable connectors match the displays input jacks. If the colors match try another cable as it is possibly defective.
